HAWKINS ZOUAVES

Submitted by Village of Richfield Springs Historian Harriett Geywits

The Village of Richfield Springs is celebrating the 165th anniversary of the incorporation of the Village, which was passed by the state legislature March 30, 1861. When incorporated, the population numbered four hundred. This was the beginning of what was considered 'The Age of Elegance' and the growth of the summer resort era. That same year, less than two weeks later on April 12, 1861, Civil War was declared between the Union troops of the North and the Confederate troops of the South.

The reputation of 'the Springs' continued to grow following the war when many of the survivors, particularly the officers, came as summer visitors to heal and relax. In the August 1896 issue of the MERCURY, it was reported that Col. Rush Hawkins and his wife would be staying at the Spring House and would most likely have very interesting tales to recount on his Army life.

What made the life of Col. Hawkins of interest? Rush Christopher Hawkins was born in Pomfret, Vermont in 1831. When he was just fifteen, he ran away to Boston with the idea of enlisting as a drummer boy, telling the recruiter that he was eighteen and had his parents' consent. He used his mother's name because he didn't want to be traced. His lies didn't work and he was told to go home and grow up! He did not take some of the advice, instead staying in Boston and later going back to the Recruiting Office where, although still underage, he was accepted and, because he was a good horseman, placed with the United States Second Dragoons to fight in the Mexican American War. He was in service for nine months. After the war ended, he moved to New York City in 1851 and studied to become a lawyer, establishing himself as a notable one with a substantial income, moving throughout the country in his work.

He met Miss Annmary Brown, the elder daughter of the Hon. Nicholas Brown (Brown University is the namesake of her grandfather) of Providence in August 1858 and they married in June 1860. Before they were married for even a year, the Civil War broke out and Rush's adventurist spirit showed itself again as he traveled to Albany to the Governor's office to offer himself for service. It is reported that he was the first New York citizen to join the Union army.

It was decided to make a unit of the Zouaves which had been drilling for some time, the nucleus of a regiment with Rusk, who had helped gain additional volunteers for the unit, appointed as colonel. They became known as Hawkins Zouaves modeled after the light infantry regiments of the French Army. They were famous for their elite status and rapid skirmish tactics.

These Zouaves were distinctive in their dress as they wore a unique version of the Zouave uniform created by the famous Brooks Brothers – a dark blue coat, vest and chasseur (hunter) style baggy trousers with red scrollwork and piping, white gaiters around their boots, a red sash wrapped around their waist held in place by an ordnance belt buckle and on their heads, a red fez with a blue tassel. The Zouaves were issued a standard federal flag as well as a unique six by eight-foot red silk battle flag with the golden inscription '9th Regiment, N. Y. V., Toujours Pret' (Always Ready) on the center.

Hawkins was always considered a man of action and had developed a hatred for General McClellan, considering him incompetent and pompous, unfit to command. He expressed his opinions to President Lincoln, members of the Cabinet and of the Senate and House, wanting the removal of General McClellan from command of the Army, but no one would listen at that time. President Lincoln is reported to have said that he had placed General McClellan at the head of the army and must rely upon him to put down this terrible rebellion by giving him the unqualified support of the government. He also told Col. Hawkins: 'If all the officers in the army had your spirit, this rebellion would not last six weeks.' Later, Secretary of War Stanton stated, when asked his opinion of Hawkins: 'He had the faculty of discovering fools and traitors in advance of the rest of us and was not discreet enough to keep his discoveries to himself.'

Col. Hawkins and the Zouave's saw battle at Hatteras, North Carolina, Roanoke Island, New Bern, and South Mills where he was wounded, Fredericksburg and the Siege of Suffolk. He was mustered out of the volunteer service on May 20, 1863. He did not return to active duty.

It wasn't until 1866 when President Andrew Johnson nominated Hawkins for appointment to the grade of brevet brigadier general of volunteers, that the Senate confirmed the appointment. (The military promotion of brevet was in name only as this was a military promotion to a higher rank without the matching higher pay.) Hawkins actually preferred being addressed as Colonel.

Following the war, Hawkins became involved in politics and was a Republican member of the New York State Assembly in 1872. Col. Hawkins also became a noted – and sometimes obsessive – rare book collector, having started shortly before the Civil War.

His collection focused on the first and second books from every European printer from the 1400s. (His collection was moved to the John Hay Library at Brown University).

He and his wife were also art collectors, especially works of American art from the 1800s. Hawkins was chosen as American Art Commissioner at the Paris Exposition in 1889, causing a controversy with Whistler over the artist's work to the point where Whistler withdrew his entries.

Col. Hawkins liked simplicity in all things and had a love for four-footed animals, giving generously to groups that offered care for them, leaving most of his estate to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

He said that his wife was among the finest people he knew, being both modest and kind. Annmary died of pneumonia in 1903. He had erected the Annmary Brown Memorial and deeded it to Brown University which also was the repository for the couple's art collection.

Gen. Rush Hawkins life came to an end suddenly in New York City on October 25, 1920, at the age of eighty-nine when he was struck by a car when he attempted to cross the street in front of his home. He requested that if people were to write about him after he was gone that they would tell the truth, without flattery, without malice - not a list of things he had done and a string of dates. His Credo which is engraved on his tombstone reads: 'I believe in unconditional honesty; The power and practice of trust; The influence of noble aspirations; The love of the beautiful.'

LOOKING FOR AN AFFORDABLE USED CAR?

SICK OF BUYING rusty junk off of an individual or online and then spending more than you paid for it trying to get it functional or to pass inspection? At Central Auto Sales I take pride in buying quality cars that are still in excellent condition that can supply you with many miles of service in the future. I typically buy my cars from states south of NY to avoid the rust associated with local cars. I have a nice selection of cars in the affordable $4-6K range, most are low miles or low miles for the age. I'm a lifetime resident of Norwich. Buy from someone local. No pressure, no fancy hype, just quality cars at fair prices! Central Auto Sales LLC, 429 Manley Road, Norwich. www.centralautosalesllc.com 607-336-6371.
